Rotary Seeks Place for Boy Scout Work

Ralph S. Dunne Installed As New President of Local Organization.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

A new crew took charge of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club Tuesday when retiring President William H. Decker turned the baton over to Ralph S. Dunne. J. Bedford Wooley was installed as vice president and Barclay L. Jones as a new director.

In addition to the new officers, William H. Fowler continues as secretary, John W. Murray as treasurer, William S. Howard as sergeant-at-arms and Raymond L. Watrous as director.

Beginning his year's work with a concrete plan, Mr. Dunne pointed out to the club the advisability of sponsoring a project suggested some months ago by Frank H. Seely, Jr. The project calls for the establishment, at some point convenient to the Main Line, of an outdoor area for Boy Scout work. The rapid breaking up of nearby woodlands for building purposes has created a condition whereby local boys have few places other than the distant Delmont Camp for outdoor activities.

The plan was presented by Mr.

Dramatic Group Is Formed in Borough

W. Russell Green Elected Head of New Organization Last Week.

Approximately twenty people met at the home of W. Russell Green on Woodbine Avenue, Narberth, last Thursday evening to form what is to be the nucleus of a Plays and Players Club in the community. There has long been felt a serious need for such an organization, and many have stressed the fact that Narberth is fortunate in having a variety of artistic talent represented among its citizenry, which should be able to fill such a need most admirably.

As yet the plans of the group are in too vague a form to report with any degree of accuracy, but at least the ball has started rolling, and a very good selection of officers has been the group's first achievement. The president elected is Mr. Green; vice president, Mrs. C. Arley Farmer; secretary, James F. Sherron, Jr., and treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Sutherland. To them has been left the work of planning helpers to assist in the strenuous work committees and choosing chairmen and of selecting plays and casts, designing scenery and costumes, as well as de-

Narberth Faces Paoli and Lansdowne on 4th

Narberth will play two games at the playground on Saturday, the Fourth of July. The morning opponent will be the league leading Paoli team and in the afternoon Ed Sullivan's Lansdowne Club will provide the opposition. Manager Gene Davis will no doubt use his hurling ace, Keith Parks, against the league leaders and either McKee or Reynolds in the afternoon fracas.

Narberth will present a much stronger team than faced Paoli earlier in the season and the morning game will no doubt be the high light of the day. Manager Gene Davis announced on Monday that he had secured the services of Joe McEntee, former Holy Cross and Penn A. C. star, whose dashing first base play was such a big factor in winning the Main Line League title last year for Narberth.

McEntee will be on hand Saturday and for the remainder of the season.

'Howdy' Powell, Narberth Boy, Nemesis to Borough Nine As Berwyn Wins Tight Fray

By DAVE CASEY

"Howdy" Powell, well-known Narberth boy, who plays second base for the invading Berwyn team, smote a long fly to Bob Martin in the ninth inning of last Saturday's game which sent Scott across the plate after the catch with the winning run and provided an unpleasant climax for local fans to a tight game. This run was the winning margin of a pitchers' battle between Jim McKee and Manager Bob Paiste in which Narberth, although outhitting the Berwyn team twelve to ten, was unable to get the needed wallops when men were on base.

The ability of Paiste, a veteran of many Main Line campaigns, to rise to

See No Change in Assessor's Post Here

Burgess Henry A. Frye stated yesterday, when the act abolishing assessors in townships and boroughs was called to his attention, that no change is expected in Narberth for the time being. E. C. Griswold, Narberth assessor, will continue in office, he said, until the end of this year anyway. Mr. Griswold's work is highly regarded by the County Commissioners at Norristown, he added, and since they will now have the appointment of an assessing board and subordinate board in their hands, it is likely that he will remain in office.

Sidewalk and Curb Repairs Are in Order; Call Borough Office to Save Yourself Bother

The Highway Committee of the Borough Council has completed its annual survey of sidewalks and curbs and as a result 68 repair orders were served on property owners last Monday. This is a much smaller number of orders than in any recent past year and grows out of the fact that less bad spots were found. Also it was the policy of the committee to show the greatest possible leniency this year because of the effects of the depressed business conditions upon the incomes of all people.

A great majority of the orders call for repairs that are neither extensive nor expensive, but which are so conspicuous that to overlook them would lower the standard of good appearance of the borough streets. This applies especially to defective curbs. The orders require the work to be done by the property owner at his own expense within 15 days from the date of the order. In case that is not done, the ordinance authorizes the borough to have the work done by competitive bids, and to charge the cost thereof to the property owner plus a 10 per cent. penalty. It has been the practice for the past several years to rebate the penalty as a cash discount on all bills that are paid within 30 days from the date thereof.

It is possible for the property owner to free himself of all bother in connection with such work by merely telephoning to the borough office and asking to have the work looked after by the borough. Such citizens then are in "voluntary default" and their work is then included among the jobs

Narberth Fireworks to Draw Big Crowd

Expect 10,000 to View Display on Borough's Playground Tomorrow.

IN CHARGE OF LEGION

In the neighborhood of 10,000 people, residents of Narberth and the Main Line communities, are expected to attend the borough's annual Fourth of July fireworks display tomorrow night.

Sponsored by the Harold D. Speakman Post, American Legion, of Narberth, the affair promises to be bigger and better than ever. It will be held, as before, on the borough's Community Playground.

The fireworks display will consist of 110 majestic settings, some of them to be first and exclusive showings. Among them are a musical aerial device which screeches its way 500 feet in air, when three great shells burst releasing a tremendous galaxy of color, accompanied by thousands of melodious whistling sounds.

"Visitors from Mars" is another unique display, with aeroplanes appearing and disappearing as they achieve great heights back to mars.

A band will play on the field in the evening and its strains will be carried to all corners of the grounds by amplifiers.

Summer Session of School Opens Monday

Offers Opportunity to Make Up Work in One or More Subjects.

The summer session of the Narberth Public Schools will open on Monday at 9 o'clock. As heretofore, the school is run in conjunction with the University of Pennsylvania, the teachers being recent university graduates. Courses will be offered in the sixth and seventh and eighth grade subjects, offering the opportunity to all pupils who failed one or more subjects to make up the work.

Due to the alteration and construction of the upper grade building, the upper floor of the primary building will be used for the summer school. All pupils taking the sixth grade work will report at 9 A. M. in Room 8, second floor, while those pupils taking seventh grade work will report in Room 6, second floor, at the same time. Any pupils desiring eighth grade work should call the school office by telephone before Monday. After Monday, the sessions will begin at 8:30 A. M. and close at 11:30 A. M. The length of the term is five weeks, six days per week.

Appointment of Planning Commission Is Permitted

Governor Gifford Pinchot this week signed three bills of far-reaching importance to Main Line communities. They are the new Township Code for Townships of the First Class, the Gicking ripper bill abolishing real estate assessors and substituting county boards, and the Congressional reapportionment bill whereby Montgomery County will have a Congressman of its own at Washington instead of sharing with Bucks County in this post.

Fire Insurance Rates Reduced in Merion, Cynwyd

Announcement was made this week by Walter C. Neely, president of the Union Fire Association of Bala-Cynwyd, that fire insurance rates would be reduced, effective July 1, on all property and contents in the fire zone comprising Bala, Cynwyd, Merion and some adjacent sections.

The new rating of a class "C" town was approved by the Philadelphia Suburban Fire Underwriters following an extensive inspection of the Union Fire Company's apparatus, an examination of its personnel, inspection of water hydrants, mains, and pressures together with a survey of buildings in the section.

Mr. Neely is also president of the Board of Directors of the Lower Merion Township Fire Department.

Last Story Hour to Be at Library Tuesday

Miss Mary Church, librarian of the Narberth Library, will have a very interesting group of stories to tell to the little children at the Story Hour at the library on Tuesday of next week. This will be the last meeting of the season for the youthful audience. All winter long from thirty-five to forty-five children have attended weekly the story hour conducted by the library and have listened to tales old and new appropriate to the season.

With the arrival of warmer days and activities on the playground it has seemed wise to omit the indoor hour until school opens again. The first meeting of the fall will be announced in sufficient time for the little ones to make their plans. Meanwhile there will be one story hour more, Tuesday of next week at the library at four o'clock, and all children are cordially invited to attend. And adults are never excluded.

No matter how stocks may fluctuate the market for onions is always strong.

Narberth Theatre Notes

"Kiki," Mary Pickford's latest, is at the Narberth Theatre this Friday and Saturday. Adapted from the Belasco stage play, it is a love comedy, featuring Reginald Denny in the male lead. Also featured is Bobby Jones in "The Putter," and a special matinee attraction this Saturday, Rin-Tin-Tin in "Rough Waters."

"The Front Page," coming to Narberth Monday and Tuesday, is a four-star sensation, giving a dramatic and interesting idea of newspaper life, as interpreted by the stage. Adolphe Menjou at his best.

"Svengali," John Barrymore's thriller, is to be at Narberth Wednesday and Thursday. Censored a bit, and not too pleasant, but splendid acting. The story of a master hynotist and Trilby, the beautiful model who sang only when under his influence.

Booth Tarkington's story, "Father's Son," is due at the borough playhouse next Friday and Saturday, with Lewis Stone and Irene Rich.

At the Egyptian

Chevalier sings many of his best in one of his best—"The Love Parade," which is returning by request at the Egyptian this week-end. Jeannette MacDonald and Lupino Lane help make it one of the preferred "talkies" released thus far.

"Men Call it Love," at Cynwyd next Monday and Tuesday, enables Adolphe Menjou and Leila Hyams to give pleasing performances.

"Shipmates," coming Wednesday and Thursday, is diverting summer entertainment, with Robert Montgomery and Dorothy Jordan.

Constance Bennett gives another of her popular characterizations in "Born to Love," at the Egyptian next week-end.

Second List of Contributors Is Published This Week.

DON'T DELAY LONGER

Still plugging for the money which is needed, but it is hoped and expected that the last-minute contributions will, as usual, afford the necessary rescue, and we shall see what we shall see next week, when the complete list is published. Won't you please arrange to send what you can, if the matter has been delayed until now, and won't you do your part in demonstrating that the town can take care of itself even when the winds are not soft nor the going as easy as we would like it to be? Meanwhile, sincere thanks to those who have helped to date and may their happiness and stores ever increase.

And speaking of those who have helped, let a special word be said for the excellent gentleman who conducts the Narberth Theatre. Since he came to town he has given in full measure to every community event where his aid has been solicited, providing intelligent publicity of a high order at his own expense, and manifesting a genuine concern and interest in the success of the various undertakings which are attempted, quite disregardful of their influence on his own patronage for the night thereof. In the conduct of his own enterprise, he gives service which is not excelled elsewhere, maintaining a theatre which is first class in every respect, comfortable, clean and orderly, and he has long since broken the habit of the ladies who used to hie to the city for their cinemas, for they have come to know they can enjoy themselves far better at home, at less cost and more convenience.

Narberth residents can help their ball team climb out of its present financial difficulties by contributing more generously when attending the games played at the community playground. Just as a reminder to those not acquainted with the fact, it is customary to contribute 25 cents per person when attending the game. Occupants of parked cars near the ball field are not exempt from this custom. Business people and directors of the Narberth Ball Club have recently contributed considerably to help meet the club's deficit, which was $300 at the beginning of the season. Those attending the games are requested to do their full share, too.

Bans on Fireworks

"A safe and sane Fourth" for years has been the rallying cry of those who wished to see the anniversary of the nation's birth passed by without the usual crop of deaths and serious injuries resulting from the use of fireworks.

Lower Merion and Narberth have both passed ordinances making the sale, use or possession of fireworks illegal. The Police Department has been instructed to enforce these ordinances rigidly, but the co-operation of parents is vitally necessary if it is to be completely effective. As Superintendent Smith points out, the gravest danger is to small children.

If you are really interested in fireworks, remember that a gorgeous display will be made on the Narberth Community Playground on the evening of the Fourth, which will far outdo any show an individual could put on.

ciding upon a proper method of "merchandising" the results of these artistic endeavors. A second meeting has been scheduled for Thursday evening, July 9, at which time more definite reports will be forthcoming concerning the new organization's proposed activities.

Several communities, not so large nor so well situated as Narberth, have successfully sustained players' groups, much to the enjoyment of the active members and of those whose patronage and enthusiasm as audiences keeps such ventures alive. It is to be hoped that Narberth will not prove backward in welcoming such an addition to its club life but will respond in large numbers to the calls which will arise for assistance both behind and before the footlights.

Any interested in learning first-hand the aims and objects of this group, with the idea of prospective membership, are cordially welcome to attend the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Arley Farmer, on Woodbine Avenue, at 8 o'clock on July 9.

Modernized Cars to Strafford August 1st

P. & W. Announces Faster New Equipment for This Division.

New modernized cars, of greater speed and comfort, will be placed in operation August 1 on the Strafford division of the Philadelphia and Western Railway, it was announced this week.

The company has been experimenting with new equipment for the past several months and the faster new cars on the Strafford division are the forerunner of similar improvements on other divisions.

Due to operating difficulties resulting from trains running at widely dissimilar speeds, the speeding up of the new cars will not be made effective until September 1, at which time faster service on the Norristown division will also be available, it is expected.

Carrying four 100-horse power motors, in place of four of 60-horse power, the new cars will attain a maximum speed on level track of from forty-four to seventy miles per hour and a much faster rate of acceleration in leaving stations.

As a result of this the running times of express trains from Sixty-ninth Street to Strafford will be cut from twenty-four to twenty minutes and of the local trains from twenty-six to twenty-two minutes with corresponding reductions in the westbound service.

Comfort has been considered in the new equipment. Seats will be wider, with more knee room—space between the seats. The smoking compartment has been abolished but smoking will be permitted on a number of seats in the rear of the car. The riding qualities of the cars have been greatly improved by radical changes in the truck design, together with a lowering of the car floor eight inches, resulting in a lower center of gravity and less side sway at high speeds.

Following the completion of the modernization program on the cars used in the Strafford service, work will be rushed upon the modernization of cars used in the Bryn Mawr local service. The schedule calls for the completion of cars for this latter service by September 15.

In its series of experiments to determine the car best suited to its needs, P. and W.'s management has been aided by some of the foremost equipment and electrical engineers of the country, and the successful solution of the problem of designing a car capable of making frequent stops and attaining high speeds between stations has been accomplished.

New Books

"The Road Back," by Erich Maria Remarque (Little, Brown and Co., $2.50).

Reviewed by J. J. Cabrey

A second book by Remarque was inevitable and it is going to have a wide vogue. It would have been better if it had come a great deal sooner. As it is, there is the natural evidence that the tremendous impress of the easy-going "All Quiet on the Western Front" has shunted the still-young author from plain and unadorned narrative to a painstaking "literature" which, at intervals, achieves a diction and distinction which are altogether comparable to Reymont's "Peasants," and this observer knows of no finer praise to bestow if we are confined to men and books of our own day and generation.

Coming sooner, it would not be so patent that the book is chiefly in response to publishers' demands. The field was too rich potentially to overlong neglect. A story like "Western Front" could very well break a man's heart and forever still his pen. What else was worth writing about when one was through with those four ghastly years and what emotions and what interests could peace bestir when an unspeakably terrible war experience had cut its harrowing way into the very soul of a youth and made him forever old?

So, then, expect nothing exactly similar to what you got in the first place and in the effort we should all be making to pull away from the rotten realism of it all, lest we perish, it might be just as well to confine the new offering to the mature of the household, letting the boys and girls get their odors of life from sources that are sweeter and fields that are more fragrant. Soon enough the rank smells confront them and the bloom goes over too early, quicker now, apparently, than it ever did before.

In every clime the soldier-man has his own tale to tell. Most of them will accept Remarque as their spokesman. Who but a soldier, broken and beaten by everything that was stark and carnal, can provide life-contrasts as they really are and insofar as they pertain to man's earthly travail? Back they came with memories which would never die, of comrades slaughtered by machines, of every vestige of an inherently spiritual manhood trailed in a bloody mud, hopelessly confused as to whether the fearful importance of it all had made its mark on those who had only heard of the fire, but had not seen it.

No wonder this sorrow, this questioning, this challenge which shall be unceasing and increasing as the men of the battles gradually acquire an articulate status which shall be a thunder's roar as compared with the whisper of their present quietude. What doomshrift is surely in store for pompous platitudes and wily preachments that are as unworthy as they are untrue!

"The Road Back" is, first and foremost, what the warrior has to say. It has its pretty phrases, when great heights are often reached, even if cavernous depths are seldom plumbed. Neither is there lack of the bald and brazen talk of the barracks and battalion. Remarque feels the soldier is doomed to walk alone. He believes that experience of such a kind is individual, not to be divided or shared, not much good in the benefits it carries for those who follow after. Of course, he must be wrong in this, because it would be wretched if he were right, and life would stand rooted in its tracks. After all, maybe it is only another one of those myriad doubts or yearnings which he is floundering to express and the answer of a civilization which shall not be denied ultimately is that the dead and maimed have not spent themselves in vain.

"Since Then," by Gibbs, gloomy though it is, affords, quite naturally, a better transcript of the post-war period's effects on men and things throughout the world. "The Road Back" is the frank tale of its influence on an individual man, different from other men, but who, nevertheless, is multiplied millions of times over in all the corners of a bewildered earth.

Section of Wall Forming Rock Garden

A section of the wall which forms part of the rock garden which Frederick G. Pierce, of "Singing Wood," Ardmore, has developed. This garden is distinctive for its use of wild flowers and native Pennsylvania plants. The plants shown on the wall are arabis, sedum ternatum, thyme languinosa, saponaria, dianthus deltoides and veronica incana.

Frederick G. Pierce's Native Pennsylvania Garden Has Unique Appeal and Charm

Garden lovers and wild flower enthusiasts would be charmed by the native Pennsylvania garden which has been achieved by Frederick G. Pierce, of Llanfair Road, Ardmore. Mr. Pierce's home which takes its name, "Singing Wood," from the spot in which it was built, stands on a slight rise in a lovely wooded spot. Into this Mr. Pierce has brought rhododendrons and laurel which, with the native dogwod and pinxter flowers, fit perfectly into the natural scheme and at one side of the house he has conceived a delightful and interesting rock garden.

In the accompanying picture is a section of the wall which forms the drive and on the bank above the rock garden proper commences. Shown growing on the wall are arabis, sedum ternatum, thyme languinosa, saponaria, dianthus deltoides and veronica incana. A little farther along this wall to the right there is some precious arbutus growing. This is but one patch of this rare flower that is rapidly becoming extinct. Mr. Pierce has been most successful in cultivating this, giving it the natural conditions under which it thrives. It is kept covered by fallen leaves just now, as much to protect its leaves from the burning sun as to keep away the cold. Then for two years a mulch of oak leaves or pine needles has been kept around it, which gives the acid soil that this wild plant demands. The proper drainage is also an important point.

In talking with Mr. Pierce about growing wild flowers and plants, of which he has a great number on the place, he stressed the point that the utmost care must be taken in transplanting all these. And he told about a patch of wintergreen which he had just brought from New Jersey and planted late in February. The whole bit was about a yard square and around this on each side, for about six inches, the earth was preserved. The whole was rolled up, as you would roll up a rug. It was protected from the wind and sun. And a bushel or so of the earth right around it was brought. Then a deep place for it was dug, the earth it had been growing in was placed in this, then the mat of wintergreen unrolled and carefully put down, each little section being placed where it belonged. This insured the minimum amount of disturbance and the wintergreen is now thriving.

Just such care is needed with all wild things and no one can expect to transplant and succeed with plants which are carelessly dug up.

Another interesting thing Mr. Pierce does when transplanting any plant or flower is to test the soil which accompanies it and then he makes the soil into which it is placed similar in character.

But to go back to our tour of the garden. Leading up from the driveway is a charming flight of stone steps which look so natural that you might think them carved from the rock itself and you come out onto a miniature plateau, rock studded. This is placed, as it were, in the heart of the woods and the natural setting adds much to its beauty and charm. Here has been achieved the perfect position for a garden of this sort, for it looks as though nature herself had made it. There is sunlight and sufficient shade: there is a tiny pool, and each rock is so placed as to hide the roots of some growing thing. Stretching away from the centre of the garden are paths which lead back through the trees. Following one of these, first you see a cluster of dog-tooth violets, farther on, bloodroot — some are mammoth blossoms—which is indigenous to the woods and have been undisturbed for time unknown. Jack-in-the-pulpit and May apples also grow here. Then there is shortia, which, though once a native of Pennsylvania, is now practically extinct here. Mr. Pierce brought this from North Carolina for his "Pennsylvania garden." The shortia has a dainty blush pink flower and is extremely rare.

Galax is a ground cover, also from the North Carolina mountains, which Mr. Pierce has used most successfully. It belongs to the evergreen family and in the fall the leaves turn a coppery red, then a deep, rich bronze, then almost black when the frost strikes them.

I couldn't begin to name all the more than one hundred and fifty varieties which go to make up this interesting rock garden. When I asked Mr. Pierce about the choice of plants for a garden of this sort, he laughingly said that he felt that people should put in their gardens the things they like. He also said that he first put in his shrubbery — rhododendrons, laurel, dwarf evergreens and azaleas forming the majority of the backgrounds, then the plants could be put in where they best fitted into the scheme, and the soil preferences made to suit them.

"A battle of wits" was the way he described wild gardening and the phrase carried with it a distinctive imaginative quality that was most intriguing. Constant experimenting and close watching are necessary in his opinion to make a garden a success.

"Howdy" Powell Nemesis to Narberth Nine

the occasion with the bases occupied by Narberth boys, coupled with some extraordinary lucky breaks, completely nullified the superior hitting power of the Davismen. The first of the breaks which contributed to the Narberth defeat occurred in the eighth inning after Berwyn had tied the score. After Martin had fanned, Barney Slaughter poled out a long two-bagger. Following this Dick Blessing sent one of Paiste's pitches soaring into Windsor Avenue but the ball went foul by a margin of inches. Blessing subsequently struck out and the inning ended without a Narberth run. In the ninth Reynolds opened the inning with a single and then Bob Jones crashed a terrific liner which, unfortunately, went straight at Davis, the visitors' capable shortstop, who gathered it in for a put out. As Martin later came through with a single, this play of Davis was responsible for preventing the tying run, as the game ended on the next play when Slaughter grounded out to Walker.

Narberth was playing without the services of Baker, King and Gilfillan, regular second baseman, catcher and shortstop, but the defeat cannot be charged to their absence as their substitutes played their positions not only capably but brilliantly. Ray Young caught a first-class game, gathered himself a base hit and held the Berwyn boys close to the bases with his snap throws. At shortstop the versatile Joe Rubincam played a good game and Dick Blessing, the manager of the Narberth Firemen, at second, fielded in a first-class manner, pounded out two hits and as related above narrowly missed breaking up the ball game. Also Manager Davis showed local fans a new first baseman in Seaver Rose, the gigantic youth who captained Lower Merion High's baseball team this year. This husky lad got himself a pair of safeties and played a star game on the initial sack, causing much favorable comment from the assembled populace. Manager Davis is indeed fortunate that he has such able substitutes when his regulars take a day off.

Narberth Downs Cops, 10-3; Keep in the Running

By DAVE CASEY

Dick Blessing's Narberth Firemen kept in the running for the first half title of the Firemen-Police League when they defeated the Lower Merion Police last Friday by a score of 10-3.

George Potter, the Narberth boy who is the ace of the police hurling staff, was extremely wild, issuing no less than nine bases on balls, which were responsible for the Narberth Firemen performing the unusual feat of scoring ten runs on only six hits. The police team also contributed four errors to assist in amassing the Narberth total.

The fast fielding Rubincam and the hitting of Callahan featured the firemen's play while Burton and Manager Walter Brown led at bat for the police.

Gregorian C. C. Monday Night Victim by 10-1 Score

By DAVE CASEY

Aided by the wildness of Gantz, visitors' pitcher, Gene Davis' Narberth nine had an easy time defeating a weak Gregorian C. C. team by the score of 10-1 Monday evening.

The inability of Gantz to find the plate, added to four errors by the visitors, and some timely hitting in which Baker and Martin led with a pair of safeties apiece, made a farce of the game, as the visitors were held helpless throughout by the pitching of Keith Parks, the youthful ace of Manager Davis' staff. Parks limited the visitors to two hits and fanned seven of them without exerting himself to any extent. The one bright spot of the game was the brilliant fielding of the versatile Joe Rubincam at third base.
